Chiropractic is a drug-free, surgery-free, non-invasive treatment of the spine and associated conditions. It is a very low risk therapy. A Doctor of Chiropractic is trained to recognise conditions that require referral elsewhere and will advise you if this is the case. Even after certain spinal surgeries, a chiropractic check-up may be advisable in order to aid recovery. Chiropractic care is safe for the whole family, from infants to the elderly, including pregnant women.

Chiropractic is Safe. Chiropractic is Natural. Chiropractic looks to Correct the Underlying Cause of the Problem

To be accepted as a member of the Scottish Chiropractic Association, each Chiropractor must have graduated from an approved Chiropractic College / University involving a minimum 4-5 years of full time study. Each member must adhere to the Association's Code of Practice and any breaches in the Code are thoroughly investigated by the SCA ethics committee. All SCA members are covered by professional indemnity insurance. The Association arranges regular seminars and post-graduate lectures to provide ongoing education for its members.

The General Chiropractic Council in a UK-wide statutory body with regulatory powers, established by the Chiropractors Act 1994. It is a criminal offence, liable to prosecution, to describe oneself as a Chiropractor without being registered with the GCC.
